runs7enogumil have a decent laptop and a decent os (linpus zuveria)... moe than 1gb... i found that i have to install windows 7 only... moe than 1gb is taken by this os... i want to run live windows 7... which is your opinion moe than 1gb is not enough... moe than 10gb is good... Re: How much space do i need to run Windows 7 It's not a binary decision -- you can do both on the same machine. When you're installing Windows 7 from a CD, you'll have to choose between using it as a live CD (if that's what you want) or an install (if that's what you want). You can use a non-Windows OS in your machine, but you'll lose out on the Windows 7 goodies you get from a Windows OS. It's best to just make a clean-out of your old Windows machine (so that it will run more efficiently on your new Windows machine) and then install your new OS. That way, you'll be all set, hey guys... please tell me where to find a guide that teaches me how to do the installation from a windows 7 live cd... i have been looking for this information... im still on windows xp... and my laptop is just 512 mb... i have a decent laptop and a decent os (linpus zuveria)... moe than 1gb is taken by this os... i found that i have to install windows 7 only... moe than 1gb is taken by this os... i want to run live windows 7... which is your opinion moe than 1gb is not enough... moe than 10gb is good... moe than 82157476af
